As I lie here now be-side— you, feel-ing warm and safe in time,— I could al-most make— my-self— be-lieve— life had al-ways been— this fine.— But in my dreams— I see a lone-ly face,— a heart so closed and small,— Search-ing for— an - oth - er heart,— I had al-most no hope at all, But I was KEEP-ING THE DREAM A - LIVE— through the times— of lone - li - ness,— So a - fraid I'd grow cold in - side,— a - fraid that I could learn— to live a - lone.— It's so ea - sy to miss your chance— for love, you know it hap-pens ev - 'ry day.— The one who could have made— you whole— just nev-er comes— your way.— And me, I wast-ed so ma-ny years,— more than I care to re-call;— With cra-zy schemes— and wan-der-ings,— it's a won-der love— ev-er hap-pens at all.—

lone-li-ness,— So a - fraid I'd grow cold in-side,— a - fraid that I could learn so-ma-ny days— in the rain,— And so ma-ny nights— I would face the new dawn,— I could-n't sleep a-way all the pain.— But I was KEEP-ING THE DREAM A-LIVE—
